

The Coach:

Creating Partnerships for a Competitive Edge

Revised Edition in the 6th Printing

Steven J. Stowell, Ph.D. Matt M. Starcevich, Ph.D.

Table of Contents

Chapter	Page
PREFACE
1. ABOUT THE BOOK
Why a revised edition	1
Our promise: Why you should read this book	1
Guide to this book	3
Partnerships are everywhere	4
2. MEMORIES NEVER DIE	13
3. THE EIGHT-STEP MODEL
Introduction	45
Step One: Be Supportive	45
Step Two: Define the Topic and Needs	49
Step Three: Establish Impact	52
Step Four: Initiate a Plan	54
Step Five: Get A Commitment	55
Step Six: Confront Excuses and Resistance	56
Step Seven: Clarify Consequences, Don't Punish	58
Step Eight: Don't Give Up	60
Summary Note: Apparent Contradictions	62
4. THE FIVE LEVELS OF COACHING
General Observations about the stair-step levels	64
Level 1: Linking	64

Level 2: Reviewing	66
Level 3: Mentoring	67
Level 4: Confronting	68
Level 5: Choosing	69
Deeper causes of coaching failures	71
5. VERSATILE COACHING AND THE MYERS-BRIGGS TYPE INDICATOR
Two ways of perceiving or taking in data	74
Two ways of judging or making decisions	75
General observations about the preferences for perceiving and judging	76
The implications of the MBTI for coaching	77
Coaching the sensor/feeler	78
Coaching the sensor/thinker	80
Coaching the intuitive/feeler	82
Coaching the intuitive/thinker	85
The role of the coach's preferences	88
6. SUPPORTING SKILLS
The fault factor	89
Employee's: one step ahead	90
Style – “to control or not to control”	93
Being descriptive: attack the concern, not the person	94
Putting your expectations to work	95
Questions and silence	97
Surfacing underlying issues	99
7. THE COACH'S CONTRIBUTION
The “one minute” leader on big myth!!	102
Doing your homework	104
The groundwork	104
The delivery	104
Reactions	105
Attending to the early warning signals	105
Management's early warning signals of potential problems/opportunities	106
Seven pieces of the performance puzzle	107
Focusing on form vs. substance	109
The overload problem	110
Winning mental attitude	111
Courage and the agony of coaching	113
The underlying coaching experience	115
Proactive vs. reactive coaching	117
Coaching: a process not an event	118
8. COACHING LESSONS FROM THE WORLD OF SPORTS
How is the sports coach different from the business coach?	122
What business coaches can adopt from successful	123

sport coaches

9. POSITIVE MOTIVATIONAL COACHING
The case for positive motivational coaching	127
Developmental coaching/ achieving your potential	130
Coaching the above average employee or outstanding performer	133
10. FINDING A COACH	136
What do you want from a coach?	136
How many coaches?	137
Does your coach pass the test?	138
Others who are helpful but might not pass the test	140
11. COACHING AT THE EXECUTIVE LEVEL
Why coaching should include executives	143
Six myths relative to executive coaching	144
What would make executives want to coach?	146
12. CONCLUDING THOUGHTS
How people change	149
10 basic coaching values	151
It's not what you think, coach, it's what you do	153
The "ART" of coaching	155
Regular "T.T.A." sessions	155
Coaching vs. performance appraisal	157
Beyond coaching: when things get out of control	158
It works in groups	160
APPENDIX:
Thinking it through: planning guide	165
Training design	167

ISBN: 0-916095-39-8

<http://coachingandmentoring.com>